JACKSON BLIND TIGERS AND POLICE OFFICERS GET ROASTED

At Enthusiastic Meeting of Law Enforcement League Held Last Night —Number of Speakers Heard—State Gets More Land—Prison Trustees Received Too Much Praise—Charles Andrews Notes.

Jackson, Feb. 12.—The county court house was comfortably filled last night when Chairman Longino called the Law Enforcement League to order shortly after 8 o'clock.

"Where Is My Wandering Boy Tonight" was beautifully rendered by Mrs. Heald, the audience joining in the chorus with hearty good will and rafters of the Temple of Justice were made to tremble with the enunciations of the pathetic song. Ex-Gov Longino, chairman of the Law Enforcement League, then presented as the first speaker of the evening Rev. J. T. Bailey, Dr. Bailey, old, in substance, that it afforded him great pleasure to be at the meeting and address such an intelligent audience. He had always tried to get in the right side of everybody, but been conservative, thought till should be. Did not believe in the conservatism which took issue with the law-abiding element and excused and apologized for crime. He had never had the idea that the object of the League is to work independently of the constituted authorities and he was sure no member did. It was a matter of great surprise to him to find that some good men have taken no stand at all, that others were opposed to the movement. He could not understand that—may be ever to change his mind on this. Some folks seem very fearful the town is going to ruined. He did not think Jackson was worse than other towns but things are being stirred up here that are not in others.

Judge L. Brame expressed his appreciation of the honor of being classed with those who could a prominent part in the reform movement. He had not been in prominence but had his heart was with them every time. As to the purposes, he had only a general knowledge; had not read the opinion and did not want to read them—was with them anyhow. His idea was that the league was to assist in the enforcement of the law, the upholding supremacy of the law. Its object was not restricted but was for enforcement of the laws generally. Recently he had heard a suggestion of hypocrisy, of intruding religion and politics into the matter. Talk of suppressing the liquor traffic always engenders hard feelings. He had known known leaders get rich; sale of liquor bringing more crime and immorality than any other agent.

Rev. J. B. Hutton said he spoke as a citizen for the first time since he came to Jackson. He had no respect for a church member made so by law. Jackson had been told by the mayor that our laws are good, and he believed that. The mayor had said he had consecrated with God, when he took charge of the office, and he hoped he had, as no officer who does not obey the law can and enforce it. It had been said that the city was going to be ruined if advertising its crimes. The idea of saying the population of Jackson would be decreased if we advertised our crimes. If that was true let 'em go. The speaker here read into a defense of the "preacher detectives." Nobody had ever said the people he turned up were not guilty. It made no difference what the feelings of the witness to be held the truth. He was satisfied the police would do what they were ordered to do. The date of the infamy could be broken up by Monday morning if the officers tried. The question is where are we going to get the orders to break up these dens when we demand them," declared the speaker.

Mr. R. K. Jayne state that he was not a member of the Law Enforcement League, but belonged to the Law Enforcement Crowd, a larger organization. The question was how to get rid of the wolves in the fold. He loved the man who runs the blind tiger and would gladly save him if he could. He was afraid to follow preachers in the movement—they get no raise in salary by going into this work but are actuated by the highest motives. The idea was to save the young men and young women. Talk about silver dollars—the fact that Jackson is full of blind tigers—when the fact is that everybody knows it. Come up the city posts so our boys can not fall in them. I wish Cliff Andrews was here today. I don't like to talk about a man behind his back. Everybody knew the blind tigers, and he had a good right to call their names. Chief Allen did his best today and he should have had a send off for detectives. The old force would have broken up the dens—if ordered.

The chief of police could move without the order of the mayor, and the mayor cannot stop him. Mr. Jayne told of his idea to round up the tigers—they would rind them every day. "Whom the Lord levels His chastisement." Now let's chase 'em and clusters 'em too. He declared he would go and assist the police in their raids if he were needed. He then paid his respects to the lawyers who take cases to defend blind tigers, and declared there is no money enough in Jackson to make him take such a case. He could respect one he would defend one would be because the court appointed him. If the lawyers would want to stop the flood of them, let them run up the white flag and surrender and then they could be sent to a reformatory. Jackson had a good mayor, Mr. Allen, and good law—if you make him do his duty. He had no apologies to make for the work done by the last legislature.

Rev. Geo. Claghine and Dr. W. B. Mounts also addressed the meeting.

Chairman Longino declared the League had no apologies to make—that if the law-abiding element did not like Jackson they could move out. On motion of Rev. G. W. Crisler the thanks of the League were voted to the two detectives who have been hurting up the criminals of Jackson.

State Gets More Land.

The Department of Interior has sent to Governor Noel land informality and certificates for 5,734.79 acres of land. This was given to the state of other lands over fifty years ago. The lands originally donated had been previously disposed of by the Federal government

C. R. SMITH GUILTY OF MURDER AND CHARGED

But Jury Recommends to the Mercy of The Court, Which Means That He Will Be Sentenced to Penitentiary for Life—Attorneys for Defense Will File Motion for New Trial This Afternoon—Miss Smith Breaks Down and Cries Piteously When Verdict Is Made Public—Attorney McConnico, for Prosecution, Pays Miss Smith High Tribute, Believing Her to Be Noblest of Women, Also Says Lawrent's Life Was as Blameless and Pure as That of an Infant.

Special to American.

COLUMBUS, MISS., FEB. 12.—THE JURY FIND THE DEFENDANT GUILTY AS CHARGED, BUT RECOMMEND HIM TO THE MERCY OF THE COURT. THIS WAS THE VERDICT OF THE JURY EMPANNELED TO TRY CHAS. R. SMITH, MURDERER OF E. A. LAURENT. THE FIRST VERDICT, WHICH WAS RETURNED AT 9 A.M. WAS ILLEGALLY FRAMED, HAVING STATED THAT THE JURORS FOUND THE DEFENDANT GUILTY, BUT WERE UNABLE TO AGREE AS TO PUNISHMENT. JUDGE BUCKLEY INSTRUCTED THEM AS TO THE CHARACTER OF THE VERDICT TO BE FORMULATED AS A RESULT OF THEIR CONFERENCE, AND AFTER HAVING BEEN TIRED FOR A FEW MINUTES THEY RETURNED INTO THE COURT ROOM AND PRESENTED THE VERDICT QUOTED ABOVE. JUDGE BUCKLEY HAS NOT AS YET PASSED SENTENCE ON THE DEFENDANT BUT UNDER THE TERMS OF THE VERDICT, WILL BE COMPELLED TO SENTENCE HIM TO THE PENITENTIARY FOR LIFE. MISS SMITH, WHOSE TEARS HAVE FLOWED COPIOUSLY THROUGH OUT THE TRIAL CRIED PITEOUSLY WHEN THE VERDICT WAS MADE PUBLIC, HER SOBS HAVING AWAKENED SYMPATHY IN THE HEARTS OF EVERY MAN IN THE ROOM. LAWYERS FOR THE DEFENSE HAVE GIVEN NOTICE THAT THEY WILL FILE A MOTION FOR A NEW TRIAL AND THIS MOTION WILL BE ARGUED BEFORE JUDGE BUCKLEY THIS EVENING. THE LANGUOR CROWD THAT EVER ASSEMBLED IN THE LOWNDES COUNTY COURT ROOM WAS PRESENT TO WITNESS THE CLOSING SCENES OF THE TRIAL LAST NIGHT. THE FINAL APPEAL ON BEHALF OF THE STATE WAS MADE BY HON. K. T. McCONNICO OF NASHVILLE, WHOSE ADDRESS IS ONE OF THE MOST BRILLIANT EVER HEARD IN THE LOWNDES COUNTY COURT ROOM. THE ATTORNEY PAID A GLOWING TRIBUTE TO MISS SMITH, DECLARING THAT HE BELIEVED HER TO BE THE NOBLEST OF WOMEN AND EXPRESSING THE HOPE THAT THE SUN WOULD SOON MAKE ITS APPEARANCE BEHIND THE DARK CLOUDS THAT NOW HANG ABOUT HER AND THAT FUTURE YEARS WOULD BRING THE HAPPINESS THAT A WOMAN POSSESSED OF A NATURE LIKE HERS SO HIGHLY DESERVED. MR. McCONNICO'S TRIBUTE TO LAURENT WAS NO LESS BEAUTIFUL. HE SAID THAT HE HAD KNOWN HIM FROM BOYHOOD AND THAT A NOBLER, MANLIER OR MORE MAN NEVER LIVED. "HIS LIFE, SAID HE, WAS AS PURE AS BLAMELESS AS THAT OF AN INFANT, AND LET US HOPE THAT HIS LIFE LIKE A CHILD, BEFORE ING IN FANCY TO THE DAYS OF HIS INFANCY AND SORRIEST WITH HIS LIFE'S BLOOD ON THE BREAST OF A DEVOTED MOTHER"

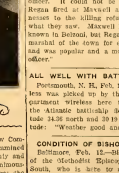
MAKING TAFT A MASON "AT SIGHT"

Judge Frederic Speed, Grand Secretary of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Mississippi, on being interviewed by the American, in regard to the statement, which is being made in the papers, that President-elect William H. Taft, is to be made a Mason "at sight" in Cincinnati next week, said: "It is a prerogative claimed by a certain small number of Grand Masters, but which is generally denied by the Grand Lodges. A number of years ago one of the Grand Masters of this state, now deceased, conferred the three degrees upon a sea captain on his ship at Cities, and Judge



Frederic Speed

Speed, as chairman of the Law Committee of the Grand Lodge, examined into the matter quite thoroughly and made a report which was unanimously adopted by the Grand Lodge; the conclusion was that the prerogative of making a Mason at sight does not exist by virtue of any landmark or ancient regulation and is not permitted by the constitution or laws of

RAILROAD RESPONSIBLE FOR DAMAGE TO COTTON

Jury in Circuit Court Awards Cotton Firm $2,769.21 Damages, in Suit Brought Against the N. W. Ry. Co. for Damage to Cotton Received While in Shipment—Special Judge Birchett Presiding—Suit Tried.

A jury in the circuit court this morning brought in a verdict for $2769.21 with 6 per cent interest from October 1, 1908, in favor of the plaintiff in the suit of W. R. Lockett & Co. vs. A. & V. Ry Co. This was a suit for damages to fifty three bales of cotton received in transit and shipped over defendant's road to Lincoln, N. C., in 1907. Plaintiffs alleged that the cotton was damaged during shipment and claimed they received wrong bills of lading and received the damaged condition than they sold it for to parties at Lincolnton. They sued for the difference.

The suit of Kahnenmyer Bros. vs. Smith & Co. has been set for trial, ready to carry out their lease for plaintiffs, property on the Levee was then taken up by Judge Birchett, a jury trial having been waived.

The case of Emma Sullivan, admx., vs. the Colored Grand Lodge, Knights of Pythias of Mississippi, was tried without a jury in the circuit court today. Hon. Thos. Birchett acting as special judge. This is a suit for $1000 insurance money claimed by a woman claiming to be the daughter of wife of the insured. A second woman claims that she is the lawful wife of decedent and is entitled to the money paid by defendant into the court to be paid the lawful claimant.

In the suit of John Ware vs T. & M. V. R. R. Co. there was a jury and verdict for Hon. E. S. Washington vs. A. & V. Ry. Co., dismissed at defendants costs.

MARSHAL REGAN KILLED.

Memphis, Feb. 12.—A special to the Commercial Appeal from Greenville, Miss., says: "News was received here tonight of the killing of Town Marshal W. W. Regan of Belmont by Richard Maxwell, in the taking place at Belmont at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Maxwell and a shotgun had stopped both barrels into the breast of the marshal, killing him instantly. He surrendered to the authorities and will be given a preliminary trial tomorrow. It was with difficulty that time mengerest details of the affair could be learned, as the citizens of Belmont, in the taking place at Belmont at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Maxwell and a shotgun had stopped both barrels into the breast of the marshal, killing him instantly. He surrendered to the authorities and will be given a preliminary trial tomorrow. It was with difficulty that time mengerest details of the affair could be learned, as the citizens of Belmont, in the taking place at Belmont at 2 o'clock this afternoon. With friends in this and neighboring towns. Men from Indianola, Inverness, Greenwood, Leland and other places rushed to get information that would throw some light on the tragedy, but little could be given.

"From what was learned here it seems that Maxwell, who is the bridge tender at Belmont and Rosedale had been drinking together all day and had had repeated quarrels. The last quarrel resulted in a personal difficulty and Regan drew his pistol on Maxwell, threatening to kill him. Maxwell, disarmed, Maxwell, said to him: 'Give me fifteen minutes start and I will shoot it out!' Regan assented to this and Maxwell ran home and came back to meet the officer. It could not be learned if Regan fired his pistol and exchanges to the killing refused to tell what they saw. Maxwell is well known in Belmont, but Regan has been marshal of the town for fifty years, and was popular and a most efficient officer."

ALONG THE WHARF.

Things were quiet on the landing today and there was but little doing.

The Nettie Johnson, with her mate aboard, was getting ready to go to Davis Bend.

The Cordill leaving today had 200 sacks of oats, shipped by Hellgason Bros. to Belmont.

The Cordill had seven bales of cotton and bundles, and was so loaded on return at noon.

The C. R. Hull and Issumable barge leave at 4 p.m. tomorrow (Saturday) for Sunflower river. Walter Kuhn, agent.

The Georgia Lee, Capt. Ed Norlund, Jr., is billed to leave for Memphis this evening at 6 o'clock Frank Strech, agent.

C. Bourne, agent of the Lee line at Memphis, was in the city this morning and saw some of the merchants in company with Frank Strech.

Harry Bigby, pilot on the H. Sup Capper, says the government is about through work at Stegg's and the government tonnage will be moved up here.

Yesterday's St. Louis Globe-Democrat says: "Navigation will open for the season of 1909 tomorrow when the steamer Fred Heydel of the Lee line will leave Memphis for St. Louis. She will arrive here on Monday and depart for Memphis Tuesday. This will be the first trip made by a Lee line steamer from this port in six weeks. The other boat packet companies are getting their fleets in readiness, and an early season is anticipated. . . . The operation of the Wiggins ferries was slightly impeded yesterday by the ice. The high wind sent the floating masses against the east shore and held them there. No damage was done, and the boats managed to make their regular trips."

THE WEATHER

FORECAST FOR TONIGHT AND SATURDAY.

For Vicksburg:

Showers this afternoon or tonight; Saturday partly cloudy.

For Mississippi:

Showers this afternoon or tonight; Saturday fair, somewhat colder in northern portion.

For Louisiana:

Tonight and Saturday unsettled weather, showers tonight or Saturday; warmer tonight in eastern portion; colder Saturday in northwestern portion.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

The temperature has risen throughout the southern and central portions of the country as the result of decreasing pressure; an elongated low pressure area extends from Southwest northwestward to Oregon. Within the last 24 hours it has caused quite general precipitation over the middle Rocky mountain districts and on the Pacific states. Light rains also fell in Missouri and Arkansas last night. A cold high area has developed over Montana and North Dakota, causing decidedly colder weather in that section, the temperature this morning being more than 30 degrees below zero from Montana, Canada, westward. Conditions are favorable to showers in this vicinity this afternoon or tonight, followed by partly cloudy weather.

DISCOURAGING MURDER.

The militant uprising of the people of Tinglahoma, outraged at the recent lynching of last week's standpat of two innocent women to hide the murder of one defenseless man, should mark the end of a civilized respect for law and human life in that parish.

The element or the timid citizen calculates the political or commercial consequences, dismal and the degrading consequences, of unpunished disorder and riot, and is inevitably balking for himself a long period of reproach and criticism at home, and of dishonor and disgrace abroad. It is easier to pipe the law developed by centuries of white civilization, to seek cause of violation, as it affects, than it is to cope with epidemics of crime encouraged by sufferance and toleration.

In the free and easy exchange of ballets that has characterized the recent history of Tinglahoma, in the cool and showing of its men and the hatchery of its women, the parish is merely suffering the necessary result of its failure to repress with sternness and decision the past disorder which shows that of its people have produced.

This sort of thing is not only a matter of hurt to a community, but a commercial injury as well. It is to be hoped for every consideration that the aroused public of Tinglahoma will not rest until they have essential the law upon the savages concerned in the recent butchery, but will maintain the spirit of law which now flames forth at this last aggravation, and apply it to every lawless deed of blood or rapine.

The example of violence unpunished never fails to stimulate violence always, and the community in which this is permitted suffers incalculably by the process.

A blind tiger operator of Kaiden parish, for instance, being properly prosecuted by a deputy sheriff, decides offhand to kill the deputy for doing his duty, as the simplest and easiest method of indicating his dissatisfaction and perhaps, also, his safety. Therefore he loaded a shotgun last Saturday, got behind a tree, and in the good old backwoods style, shot the sheriff's life out.

Two men quarrel the same day up in a little Alabama town, about the bitting of a negro. A fusillade begins and both are dead when it ends. Both were men of substance, prominent and common wealth, and heads of families who needed them and their hospitalities—both a sacrifice to the stupid delusion that murder is honorable when not very rigidly punished.

The vicious and premeditated slaughter of a postal inspector in a Mississippi town, only a few days before, was a case like that in Kaiden. The inspector had done his duty on a sovereign citizen, and murder was the simplest and easiest means of revenge, most which suggested itself.

The palliation of this offense, the ignoring of milder ones, tends always to the commission of more heinous crimes, and in the end the community has to rise for its salvation and wreak vengeance upon the agent of vengeance ought to exist and no peace of gore ought to have been spilt.

It is this conviction that causes us to lay so much stress on the utter disregard of public law, in more unimportant particulars, in Jefferson parish.

Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, in his speech at the celebration of the centenary of Abraham Lincoln, took occasion to say that no state should be given a right to disregard a treaty made by the United States, or to set out to bring war upon the nation.

YAZOO TO PROTECT ITS GAME.

Yazoo county has struck a new note in the general movement for the preservation of game. Finding that the local as well as the law were disregarded by visiting sportsmen, as well as by the irresponsible class of home hunters, the board of supervisors has passed an order to compel all persons who wish to hunt in that county to take out a license. The order of the board is worded as follows:

"Be it ordered, that after this date it shall be unlawful for any nonresident of Yazoo county to hunt or fish within the limits of said county without first paying a license fee of $10 to the sheriff."

The order does not apply to nonresidents hunting or fishing on land owned by them.

It is hoped that the measure will have some effect in putting an end to the practice of hunting and fishing for market, of seining and dynamiting, and also to the depredations of pot hunters, all of which has done so much to decimate the game and fish of Yazoo, as well as of every other county in the state.

THE LINCOLN CENTENARY.

Men of North and South, and of foreign countries, with the president of the nation at their head, are assembled today at the spot where Abraham Lincoln was born, united in rendering homage to one of the greatest and most striking figures of American history. To us of the South one of the most interesting tributes is that of Luke E. Wright, spoken on behalf of the Confederate soldiers. We know Lincoln better now than we did at the conclusion of the war, and we think General Wright for saying for us that we now recognized that he felt only an anxious desire to restore the southern states to their former place in the Union and to heal the wounds of civil strife. "The days from of reconstruction did more to postpone reconciliation than did the war itself," said General Wright; and the whole South feels today that had Lincoln lived that crowning sacrifice, that moral and social, as well as material destruction of the South, would never have taken place. We know now that in his death the South suffered the loss of one on whose friendliness, sincerity and broad humanity it might safely have relied.

But not only his own country, now reunited as he would have wished to see it, paid tribute to the memory of Abraham Lincoln. England, in the person of her ambassador, the Hon. James Bryce, said of him: A man may be great by intellect, or character, or by both. The highest men are great by both; and of these was Abraham Lincoln."

France, through M. Jusserand, her official representative, aptly applied to Lincoln the words of Pericles: "It is the fortune of all good men that their virtues rise in glory after their death."

CLIMAX IN BEREA COLLEGE DECISION.

The enforced segregation of races in Kentucky schools, brought to a climax by the Berea College decision, promises to result in great advantage to the cause of negro education in that state. It is proposed to establish, at a cost of $400,000, an industrial school for negroes, of the amount of which sum Kentucky is required to donate only the society of $65,000. The project appears to be highly favored by the press and educational authorities of the state, the leading paper, the Courier Journal, commenting in its an editorial saying:

"Certainly if we do not take advantage of the present conditions on which we may obtain this school we are sadly lacking in any real comprehension of the incalculable benefit such an institution would be both to the blacks and the whites of the state. Surely the whole sum necessary for the establishment of the school has already been obtained, providing we contribute only $65,000 of the proposed $400,000. Surely hundred thousand dollars could not be spent to better advantage of Kentucky. We need the school. The negroes need it. What is more, the negroes deserve it; they are proving that by their efforts to value among themselves a large part of the required fund."

Such an institution is of peculiar interest, not only to Kentucky, but to the educated and ambitious class of negroes in his country and also of course throughout the South. It would afford a means of giving their sons and daughters educational advantages which they could not secure at home, and from which they are barred by the practice of excluding persons of colored blood from all the public schools of the South.

GROWTH OF CHURCHES.

Much interest attaches to a report recently made and published by Dr. H. K. Carroll, of New York, and which shows that the Christian churches of this country show a membership of 54,323,512. Of this total Dr. Carroll credits 12,694,604 to the Roman Catholic church.

The number of communicants added to all the churches in 1908 was 728,647, which shows a heavy decline from the accession of 1907. In that year the gains were 1,241,236, more than half of which were credited to the Roman Catholic church, the explanation being that the Catholic increase during the past year to be only 200,000, while the gain made by the Protestant bodies is 423,404.

The statistics of Dr. Carroll show a numerical decrease in nearly all denominations within the year, the most notable being in the case of the Presbyterian church North, which has 31,816 communicants fewer than a year ago. This apparent falling off, however, is owing to readjustment of the relations between the Presbyterian and Cumberland churches, and may therefore not be regarded as actual. The most striking feature of the report is the rapid growth and preponderance of the Catholic church. But it must be borne in mind that these statistics, though compiled by Protestants, give only the actual church membership, so the case of the Catholics practically all adherents of that faith are communicants, while many, since compulsion of family affiliations are Protestant are not formally connected with any church. The larger Protestant bodies may probably claim almost twice as many nominal adherents as actual communicants.

OLD LADIES' HOME.

The board of supervisors of Coahoma county has put itself on record in a most favorable light by appropriating a donation for the Old Ladies' House at Jackson. It is an enlightened idea that might be most advantageously followed by all the other counties of the state. The institution is one in which all the people of Mississippi feel a direct personal interest. It was created by the individual contributions of citizens, after it had been refused as a state charity, and this fact brings it closer to the sympathies of the people than if the building had been erected and furnished by a generous legislative enactment. Mississippi has two institutions of like kind which appeal peculiarly to popular sympathy and favor, and for the maintenance of which the state is morally pledged. The other is the Beauvoir home for old Confederate soldiers. This place is now unfortunately crowded; and in the state there are many aged and infirm veterans who would otherwise be objects of charity, yet who are forced to find a refuge in poor houses and even in county jails, in lieu of any other accommodation for them. That one of these men should be an inmate of a county poor house, and much more a county jail is a shame to the state. In an equal degree it is a shame that any worthy and respectable white woman, in her old age, should be forced to such humiliation, or even to be a dependent on the charity of friends. Beauvoir and the Old Ladies' Home will know and increase in capacity and in public favor as their importance becomes more generally recognized. They are state institutions. The responsibility for their maintenance should not be shifted entirely to the shoulders of the Daughters of the Confederacy and the devoted women of the state who cluttered through the enterprise of the Old Ladies' Home.

this Grand Lodge." There formerly existed in England two rival Grand Lodges, both of which claimed jurisdiction in this country, prior to their consolidation in 1813. One of these known as the "Ancients" originated a number of strange practices, in clubs, operations of which they were known as the "Systematics" and amongst other things which they did, which was not allowed by the original Grand Lodge, was this idea, that a Mason could be made "at sight" by the Grand Master of his own will and pleasure and without the candidate having been elected by any lodge. The Grand Lodges in America, whose original bodies were chartered by the so-called "Ancients," as a matter of course adopted their customs and it is upon this ground that the Grand Masters in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Ohio and a few other of the states assumed to make Masons "at sight" and occasionally in Louisiana and also in a number of other states.

"In Europe and especially upon the Continent, where as a rule, the sovereign is the Grand Patron of Masonry, it has been customary for him to make Masons 'at sight,' although assisted by a regular lodge. It was in 1875 way, that King Edward of England was made a Mason by the King of Sweden and the duke of Kent, when he was Grand Master of Masons in England, frequently cancelled his prerogative. A statement has been going around the papers and magazines every few years, with tiresome regularity, that it was in this way, that President McKinley was made a Mason, but which was not the case, for he was regularly made in one of the lodges in the Shenandoah Valley, wh n he was stationed there on duty as an Ohio regiment, during the war. His attention having been attracted to Masonry seeing the attentions paid to the Confederate wounded by the Surgeons in the Federal hospital and afterwards ascertained that they were Masons. It need not be said, that Masonry as altogether too dignified to be institution to look with favor upon Mr. Taft's indorsing Masonry in so irregular a manner, simply because he is soon to occupy the most exalted station on earth. In Masonry, all men meet upon the level and inside the lodge, the president of the United States or the king of England, sit upon an equality with the blacksmith from his forge or the farmer from between the plow handles."

NOTES OF LABOR WORLD.

The organization of a labor protective league is planned in Boston.

Union cigarmakers in Pennsylvania intend to demand an increase in wages.

In 1874 a mechanics' convention was held in Utica, N. Y., to protest against convict labor.

About 400 maltsters employed in Dublin (Ireland) breweries have struck for an increase of wages.

A Saturday afternoon holiday was the custom in Rutland among work linguers to the back at the 15th century.

A New England district council of the retail clerks, union was formed at a convention of 32 of the unions.

The district officers from fourteen of the Electrical Workers' unions will meet at Mobile, Ala., for a three days session.

The government of Hungary has ordered the dissolution of the Union of Railway Workers and the confiscation of their funds.

A great victory is recorded in favor of industrial peace in England by the constitution of a conciliation board for iron founders throughout Lancashire.

The Coal Miners' Federation in New Zealand has decided to register under the Trades Union Act instead of the Arbitration Act, thereby retaining the right to strike.

The proposed consolidation of the Central Labor Union and the Federation of Labor of Brooklyn, N. Y., has the appearance of an accomplished fact, according to reports.

The irreducible adherents of Cleveland, Ellyson, have decided by unanimous vote to use every endeavor to obtain a five per cent advance in wages on the present existing base rate.

John Philip Sousa is to lead the band of four hundred men at the annual concert of the Boston Musicians' Protective Association, which will be held on Sunday next, February 14.

For Strength

The Supreme Court Says

in a recent decision about female labor: "The two sexes differ, in structure of body, in the functions to be performed by each, in the amount of physical strength, in the capacity for long-continued labor, etc."

It follows that female weakness, due to these differences in body structure and functions, requires some certain medicine to hit the right spot and that Cardui, the medicine for women, is more likely to be the right thing for women to take, when sick, than a medicine recommended for the two sexes alike.

Try Cardui, for female pain, irregularity, weakness, or misery. It is a specific female remedy, especially recommended for the diseases peculiar to the female sex, a medicine that, in the past 50 years, has benefited over a million—WOMEN.

MISS ANNIE RUSSELL IN "THE STRONGER SEX"

This charming comedy of English life was one of the best staged, best dressed and most finished plays seen on the Vicksburg stage this winter. As for me Miss Russell herself was conceived to may be extravagant but I dare say that the acting of her part has not been equalled since this season. She has an enviable record among the best American women of the stage, and the reputation which precedded her from her New York successes was fully sustained on the occasion of this, her first visit to Vicksburg.

There is no extravagance, no violent climaxes, no excessive emotionalism in the play, it we except the improbability of the story itself, which is a sort of inverted version of the Taming of the Shrew. It is a representation of life among well-bred English people, a class in which emotionalism is studiously repressed, and sentimentalism and "scenes" avoided religiously. Injected into this environment are a few hints of western American "cowboy drama," including the leveling of a revolver on her unmanageable husband by the heroine, and the lonely independence of the Texas cousin in the face of British conventionalities.

Miss Russell is admirably supported, especially by Helen Tracy as Mrs. Van Gantvoort, and Miss Alma Kruger as Jean Forsythe. The leading men impress their audience as being somewhat mismatched and as showing no insufficient amount of fervor into the love scenes. This, however, may be attributable to correct representation of British stolidity, and therefore a merit, instead of a defect.

The scenes were by all the actresses are handsome and appropriate. Those of Miss Russell are evidently the "last word," the extreme limit of the art of the modern fashionable dressmaker. The stage setting has not been equalled by that of any play seen here this winter.

"FATHER AND THE BOYS."

"Father and the Boys", in which W. H. Crane is to appear in this city in the near future, at the Walnut street theatre is without doubt George Ade's very clevrest comedy, and, with Mr. Crane, playing the leading part, Mr. Ade seems to have once more striden since he gave the public "The College Widow" and "The County Chairman." This does not mean that the two latter plays were not up to the mark, but "Father and the Boys" is so far beyond what the author considered the mary at that time, that it has widened very materially the popularity of both Mr. Crane and Mr. Ade which goes to show that the popular is not an excellent one. The play is the biggest success that Mr. Crane has had in years, and is very justly regarded as one of the distinct hits of his long career on the stage. Charles Frohman has given "Father and the Boys" a splendid production, and has surrounded Mr. Crane with an excellent support, in which Margaret Dale is chiefly conspicuous.

STAKE THROUGH CHEST; SURVIVES

Utica, N. Y., Feb. 12—If you ask George Lane today, "How are you?" he answers cheerily, "Never felt better in my life." And he speaks the truth. Boldly, muscular and perfectly healthy, Lane, thirty-six years old, is doing tremendously hard work as a logger in the Adirondacks. He has survived an extraordinary accident. A shaft of wood, twenty-three inches long, and one-and-a-half thick, piercing his thorax through and through.

The stake on which Lane was impaled was the edging from a rough bond, 7-inch of as tree of the small end—the end which entered his body on the first side—measured 23 inches in the larger end, which was broken off at the point of entrance.

The stake entered Lane's chest at his left nipple, breaking a rib. It presented his left lung, thin his right lung, and, finally, passed through his right upper arm behind his bone, pinning the arm to his side.

Mr. E. M. Hyland, a distinguished surgeon of this city, reported this extraordinary case at the annual meeting of the New York State Medical Society held in Albany the other day. In the paper which Dr. Hyland read, describing the operation, he said:

"I present to you the report of a case of thorax transfixion, which, I believe, has not a parallel; one which, I believe is unique in surgical records."

Dr. Hyland introduced Lane to the assembled physicians. Lane, "A strong man exploding in his strength," shuddered the scene on his chest, but did not seem to understand why he was the object of such curiosity.

In his paper Dr. Hyland wrote:

"The case is that of George Lane, of Forestport, N. Y. On June 11, 1906, he was operating on edging machine in the lumber mills of Pullman Bros., at Pulton Chain, N. Y. The machinery became stuck and hindered in some way, and, upon being released in some manner unknown to Lane, an edging was broken off and driven through his chest and arm. He was thrown to the floor unconscious, but regained consciousness quickly. When fellow workmen reached him the board was pinned to the floor by one of the body.

"The accident occurred at 6:30 in the morning. Drs. Nelson and Lindsey, of Old Forge, were called and rendered all possible assistance, and at 8 o'clock train and accompanying him to Utica, a distance of fifty miles, for the meantime I had been summoned to meet the train, which I did, and by request of Mr. Pullman, who accompanied him. Lane was conveyed to St. Elizabeth's Hospital, where I proceeded at once, with the assistance of Drs. Weimers and Gramm, to remove the piece of edging. I might add that up to the time of administering the anesthetic Lane was perfectly conscious.

"On two sides of the edging the grain of the wood ran in opposite directions, and believing that the loose slivers were already detached from the edging and probably imbedded in the lungs, I deemed it advisable to remove the edging by carrying it through in the direction in which it had entered. I enlarged the opening and with a great deal of force drew it slowly through the body.

"The hemorrhage resulting was insignificant. The right lung collapsed below the seat of the injury. Upon inhalation and exhalation the air passed freely through both operations."

Dr. Hyland then described the treatment to the physicians. Enough for injuries to cover first, although Lane's recovery was retarded by attacks of pleurisy and empyema, he returned to his home on Aug. 27, about ten weeks after the accident, his wounds having nearly healed.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S ADDRESS

Delivered at the Dedication of the Lincoln Memorial Today, the Hundredth Anniversary of Abram Lincoln's Birth

We have met here to celebrate the hundredth anniversary of the birth of one of the two greatest Americans; of one of the two or three greatest men of the nineteenth century; of one of the greatest men in the world's history. This soldiler, this boy who passed his ungainly youth in the dire poverty of the poorest of the frontier borders, whose life was weary and painful toilsome, lived to lead his people through the bitterest storm of a struggle from which the nation emerged, purged by its fire, then anew to a better life. After long years of iron effort, and of failure that come more often than victory, he at last rose to the leadership of the Republic, at the moment when that nobler ideality had become the atmosphere wonderful of the place. He grew to greater stature, but never more. Success came to him, but never happiness, save that which springs from labor well a painful and a vital task. Power was his, but not pleasure. The forces dispersed on his home, but his eyes were unclouded by either hate or fear. His patient shoulders were bowed, but his clear brain never faltered as he bore for a burden the destiny of his people. His firm and tender heart shrank from giving pain; and the task allotted him was to pour out like water the life-blood of the young men, and to feel in his every fiber the sorrow of the wound. Disaster saddened but never dismayed him. In the last years of his life he went by they found him ever doing his duty in the present, ever facing the future fearless, frank, full of hope, of humor, and devoidless of soul. Unshaken by hatred, unshaken by scorn, he worked and suffered for the people. Triumph was his at the last; and hatred had for ever died in the murder found him, and the kindly, patient features open were closed forever.

As a people we are indeed beyond measure fortunate in the characters of the two greatest of our public men, Washington and Lincoln. Widely though they differed in externals, the Virginia land-a gentleman and the Kentucky backwoodsman, they were alike in essentials, they were alike in the great principles which rendered each able to render service to his nation, and to all mankind such as no other man of his generation could or did render. Each had lofty ideals. But each in striving to obtain these lofty ideals was guided by the sound and common sense. Each possessed indomitable courage in adversity, and a soul wholly unspoiled by prosperity. Each possessed all the gentler virtues commonly exhibited by good men who lack rugged strength of character. Each possessed also all the strong qualities commonly exhibited by timeborrowing members of mankind who have often shown themselves devoid of so much as the understanding of what the words by which we signify the qualities of duty, of mercy, of devotion to the right, of lofty disinterestedness in battling for the good of others. There have been other men as great and other men as good; but in all the history of mankind there have not been other two great men as good as these, no other two good men as great. Widely though the problems of today differ from the problems set for solution at Washington when he founded this nation, to Lincoln which he saved it and freed the slave, yet the qualities they showed in meeting these problems are exactly the same as those we should show in doing our work today.

Lincoln was into the future with the prophetic immediately vouchsafed only to the poet and the seer. He had a firm all his life long greatness of the visionary, with not any of the visionary's fecklessness or egotism. He was the most visionary—more jealousy of the peace that comes from the right, than the practical fashion for the realization of an ideal—he had the practical vision that enabled him to see that thoughtless to adopt means to ends; he was a man who was of that most hid growth of mind and soul which makes us name scarcely men to the higher minds of life. No more practical man ever lived than this homely backwoodsman, who was the first to log in common with those practical men who made Illinois a state, worked until they fail to distinguish between good and evil, but to understand that there is a difference between evil in the world of business or of politics and evil only evil in the world of business or a more zealous, a more evil worker of the community, if they are not equally good they are at least good enough.

We of this day must be solved the great practical problem requiring to an especial degree the practical vision and moderation combined with unalloyed sanity. We must solve it if we do our work well. Lincoln said both these traits as he strove for reform. We can learn much from the fact that he was right when following that course brought him to the bitterness of the extremists of reaction. He never wavered on devotion to his principles, in his hatred of slavery, in his abhorrence of slavery. Timid and timorous men at times grew afraid of his zeal because he was too extreme; but as a matter of fact he was not extreme, and he was wisely kept by step; and because of this, he succeeded in the end in carrying him with a fervor which now seems to us almost that of the prophet, in the unreal and the impossible. At the very time when one side was holding him up to the opposite of social equality because he was against slavery, the other side was holding up to opprobrium as the "slave hound of Illinois." When he was the second time candidate for President, the majority of his opponents attacked him because of his alleged lack of sympathy with secession, while a minority threatened to hold his combination because he was not radical enough. He had carefully to check those who wished to go forward too fast, at the very time that he overrode the opposition of those who wished to go forward at all. The goal was never dim before his vision, but he picked his way cautiously, without their half so nearly as he strode toward it, through such a course of conduct that a man of less courage would have interrupted it, while it would surely have overwhelmed any man of judgment less serene.

Perhaps the most wonderful thing of all, and, from the standpoint of the American of today and of the future, the most vitally important, was the extraordinary way in which Lincoln could find variously expressed what he deemed wrong and yet preserve unfinished his love and respect for the brother who had wronged himself. Fu the have of a triumph that would have left rankling bitterness behind in the heart of a struggle which spared many a good man to crawling into his hole and trembling there, so long as he had been in his office he had spoken of the Southern people in my man's books, and brought his supporters to study the incidents of the Southern people with the reasoning as philosophy from which to pass to action, not as woman to be avenged; ending with the solemn expression that it was to be his earnest all should resolve to a common effort to save their common country.

Such was the man who was great and terrible, when brother fought against brother, who was called upon by deemed to be the right. In a country so given the stress men who allow to be the right, to be willing to do justice to the deep convictions of those who may differ with us in moral strife. At such times men too strongly a class quality: to only see their own side, to be unable to realize that their vision which grasps a portion of the truth may be blind to the struggle fades into distance, and wounds are forgotten, and peace comes, and we see that the right was on both sides, that both were in the wrong, that both were blind, but that the blindness came from whom he differed. Weak men are so foreign as wickedness to hate the opposite side, to be unable to recognize the qualities which make for good in the other side. He saw clearly that the same high qualities, the same courage and willingness for self-sacrifice, and devotion to the right as it was given them to see the right, were shown by many of the North and to the men of the South. It was his task to do his and as all of us wherever we dwell, strive to feel an equal pride in the valor and self-devotion, alike of the man who wore the gray, so this whole nation may be made to feel a peculiar sense of pride in the mightiest of the mighty men who mastered the mighty depth; the lover of his country and yet all mankind; the man whose blood was shed for the union of his people, and for the freedom of a race, Abraham Lincoln.

HAIR NATURALLY ABUNDANT.

When It Is Free of Dandruff, It Grows Luxuriantly.

Hair preparations and dandruff cures, as a rule, are strong in promising claims that do as earthly good. Hair, when not diseased, grows luxuriantly, luxuriantly. Dandruff is the cause of nine-tenths of all hair troubles, and dandruff is caused by a germ. The only way to cure dandruff is to kill the germ, and, so far, the only hair preparation that will positively destroy the germ is Newbro's Herpicide, absolutely harmless, free from grease, and delightfully refreshing to use. Herpicide allows healthy hair to grow luxuriantly, makes hair glossy and soft as silk. "Destroy the germ, you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. THE STORY OF LINCOLN FARM

Hodgenville, Ky., Feb. 12.—The centenary of Abraham Lincoln's birth will be observed generally throughout the United States, but nowhere will the commemoration exercises command more interest than those to be held in this little town today. Two miles from here on the Lincoln farm, which has been purchased by a national association, formed for the purpose, President Roosevelt will lay the corner stone of a memorial building now being erected by popular subscription to many Lincoln's birthplace and to protect for all times the little log cabin in which the martyr president was born.

The centenary address on the occasion will be delivered by President Roosevelt. General Luke E. Wright, the secretary of war, will speak on behalf of the Confederate soldiers. General Grant Wilson will represent the veterans of the Union army and Lincoln's native state will be represented by Governor Augustus E. Willson of Kentucky. Other addresses will be made by Bishop Galloway of Mississippi and ex-Governor Joseph W. Folk of Missouri.

Hodgenville, which is acting the geographical center of the state of Kentucky and not far from the center of population of the United States, promises to become a new Mecca in America and the Lincoln farm a second Mount Vernon. Although Abraham Lincoln had other homes there is a sentiment about his birthplace that does not attach to any of them. He lived here for eight years and before he left, knew very much of what Mark Twain calls "the social Hottentotism that raised a man." He was swimming in the murky creek and in the clear one, he was hoeing corn in the fields the corn cobb he learn to fire arm.

It was in 1806 that Thomas Lincoln brought his bride, Nancy Hanks, and their children to the little home that three years later was to welcome into the world its future president. Thoin's was the rough life of pioneers; the farm was then as it is now, hilly and stony, and the soil and the hoes both could meet the other Lincoln family and all struggled against poverty. For some years Thomas Lincoln served as a county surveyor of public roads, an important position in that time. Land owners paid their taxes in labor with pick and shovel then, and on road standing days he used to take his little sons along both to company and for help. There are old timers here now who claim that there was a little girl who was the apple of his eye in several miles of his home along the Nolin river, and that he was pleased or on which he has not driven his car taxes.

At the time Kentucky offered few allurements to a poor man and in 1814 the Lincolns sold the little farm and moved to Indiana. Subsequently Abraham Lincoln moved into Illinois and the rest is history. But through all the years that followed he never forgot his first home. He rarely referred to it, but after he had become president of the United States he in a letter to a friend in Illinois "Where I was born there I should be buried. I cannot be more at home."

He never had direct control of the farm, but it was kept alive and in varied history. Thomas Lincoln sold it to a family named Sparrow, and it remained in their hands for over seventy years. Its beautiful rock springs and shady groves attracted fishing parties and only recently has anyone authorized to the realization and those one hundred and ten acres had any value beyond their yield in corn and potatoes. From time to time newspapers have announced that the Lincoln farm was for sale, but a few years ago it was given into the management of a Rev. J. W. Hingham, who removed the log cabin to the exhibition at Nashville, and later sold it to a Chicago syndicate who took it about the country as a travelling show. For a year or more the logs were bound in a collar at Coney Island, Long Island, where it was exhibited as a curiosity and was restored to its original site.

The farm itself has been the subject of litigation for several years and efforts have been made by various interests to use it for one purpose or another. Many schemes have been suggested from time to time but some of them have borne any large national significance. Finally in 1906 it was advertised that "on August 28 the Lincoln farm was to be sold between the hours of ten and two from the front house steps at public outcry and to the highest bidder."

Mr. Robert A. Collier, of New York City, had been negotiating for the property and upon the appearance of this notice he dispatched Mr. Hill and Lloyd Jones to Hodgenville with instructions to buy the place if possible.

The day set for the bidding was one of stifling heat. There fortunately railway operation in this neighborhood. Elizabethtown, twelve miles away, was as near as Mr. Jones could come by rail before Monday noon. At the little hotel in Elizabethtown Mr. Jones met two individuals who he learned were sent on the same mission as himself. One was represented a prominent eastern merchant, the other was a Chicago syndicate. Jones opened the commercial value of the farm water from the rock spring and the bottle land. He spoke of the sentiment "Lincoln Birthplace Whiskey." Hill had come to the auction with the "Hill it is" and the sentiment which the Hillsboro spirit their emotion was intense. Jones was informed their rule for before evening their emotions had intensified and was elated to a high degree, and by still higher degree the next morning.

Mr. Jones came here by train early the next morning and sought out the Sparrows and found the cracker the sale. With the thought of the Lincoln farm in the hands of strangers in Elizabethtown he tried to pay the commissioner to start the sale immediately. He feared that official was for having it in the afternoon. The Sparrows family was agreed upon as a compromise. Meanwhile the news had excited more interest among the citizens of the village and it was but a small crowd that gathered at the court house when Commissioner Hendley started the sale. Jones was ready to sold the Rock Spring farm. The sale started at $1,500 and was gradually worked up to $5,000 at which price it was sold to Mr. Collier's representative. After the purchase Jones was greatly drawn and recorded Mr. Jones started to drive back to Elizabethtown and arrived there at 8 o'clock. The bidders who was marchlessly hungry. He was loth to reach the auction in time to bid. An indignant sulphur Jones greeted Mr. Jones announced that the farm was sold to him. He his pocket.

"Why, I am f to my when get back," the other shouted in dismay. "I had a bid of $5,000 for it right now." But Mr. Collier had been up the place and it was not hand. Jones refused to accept the group of representative American citizens to formulate a national association for the preservation of the ground. This group of citizens organized the Lincoln Farm Association which was promptly incorporating under the laws of the state of Kentucky. The title of the Lincoln birthplace was transferred to this association and, the money, which came from the membership of the society was at once used to order to make the memorial to Lincoln represent the desires of all the people on contribution of more than twenty cents. Its has been accepted and anyone giving or more than twenty cents is entitled to membership in the organization.

Since this time about twenty thousand subscriptions have been received averaging a little less than a dollar and forty cents to a member. With these funds the authorities bought the cabin in which Lincoln was born and set it up on its original site. The work of building the memorial building which is to cover the cabin and they have made good progress toward completing the farm into a beautiful park.

WAR VESSEL FOR NATCHEZ.

President McBrhill, of the Mixed Gun Association, received a telegram from Washington this morning, in which he stated that it was probable that the question of securing a warvessel for Natchez during the summer will be definitely settled tomorrow, and that the result will be immediately communicated. The telegram express good news, and practically assures the citizens of Natchez that the possibility a torpedo boat will be detailed for the Natchez carnival. As Natchez has already enjoyed visits from battleships and cruisers, the presence of the torpedo boat will be a novelty indeed, and will undoubtedly prove a tremendous attraction.—Natchez Record, 12th.

Fires Upon Prowler in Her Home—Physicians Addresses Subpoenaed.

Biloxi, Miss., Feb. 12.—Mrs. A. L. Krebs, wife of the local Western Union operator, fired upon a suspicious visited and adult prowler who attempted to force his way into her house at 9:30 o'clock Wednesday night during the absence of Mr. Krebs from home. The bullet took a twenty-eight calibre revolver passed through the door a few inches above the intruder's head. The marauder is supposed to have been a negro, and Mrs. Krebs is sure she is a companion, as she heard them talking.

Dr. Fred Mayer, who is traveling in Mississippi for the State Board of Health, and delivering lectures on public health and sanitation, from a commonsense standpoint, addressed a gathering of school children at the city hall yesterday afternoon and spoke to the general public last night.

NARROWLY MISSED CREMATION.

Lodging House Fire in Hattiesburg Nearly Claims Victims.

Hattiesburg, Miss., Feb. 12—In a fire Wednesday night at 12 o'clock, which gutted the upper story of the Tuft building at 128 Mobile street, used as a lodging house, and in which the Hubbard Hardware store is located, several people came near being cremated, some of the roomers hardly getting out in time. Mrs. W. C. Hardee, who conducted the place, was only awakened by the smoke and flames had nearly suffocated him to a point of unconsciousness. The damage to the place, which is almost total, will reach about $2,000. The damage to the Hubbard stock by water is estimated at $2,000, partially covered by insurance. Mr. Hubbard had just yesterday restocked his store with fur nitere from his warehouse.

SENTENCED TO HANG.

Criminal Court at Fayette Ended—Judge Wilkinson Clears Docket.

Fayette, Miss., Feb. 11.—Yesterday was sentence day in the circuit court, which has been a busy one for the judge, and Judge Wilkinson had the four prisoners who have been convicted at this term of court and sentenced them as follows: Henry Jackson, convicted of forgery, three years in the state penitentiary; Frank Sexton, manslaughter, twelve months in county jail; Candy Wilson murder, sentenced to be hanged on Monday, March 22. Counsel for Wilson has not yet given notice whether or not he will take an appeal.

Practically all the business of the term has been finished, with the exception of a criminal assault case in which all parties involved are accused, and which is now being tried.

The magnificent work done by the local waterworks plant, the erection of the Meridale store fire Sunday night in awaking adjacent property and preventing the fire from spreading, has been fruit by two of the protestants against the issuance of additional bonds for improving the municipal water and fire plants withdrawing their protest. The two are Chancellor J. S. Hicks and exSheriff F. R. Noble.

SHE WON'T TALK.

Mrs. Lockwood Refuses to Discuss Silver Service Deadlock.

Meridian, Miss., Feb. 12.—Mrs. Alice Lockwood, of Crystal Springs, is in the city today and is the guest of the Great Southern.

Mrs. Lockwood was asked if she would discuss the deadlock and the controversy over the battleship fund, and she said that she would be glad to talk for the newspapers, as they had been exceedingly kind to her and her husband, and had always over the matter she desired to keep back. She said that she would go further that if she were to talk at all that her remarks might be misunderstood and that she did not wish to do anything except what was best for the state. She said that she was sorry that her business in the city was of a private character and that she was to do with the purchase of the silver service for the battleship Mississippi.

In speaking of her husband Mrs. Wood said that she had raised more than $100,000 since the fire of last June and considering the fact that last year was such a hard year on the people in Mississippi, she thought he had done pretty well.

"I know he will be treated every where I have been," said Mrs. Lockwood, "and you can say that I know he will be treated everywhere. I am proud of my husband."

BROOKHAVEN COMPANY

Of Soldiers Accepts Invitation to Attend Natchez Mardi Gras.

Brookhaven, Miss., Feb. 12.—The Bicoewall Guards, Company H, Third Infantry, have accepted an invitation to participate in the Mardi Gras festivities at Natchez on the 22nd and 23rd of this month.

The boys will go over on the 8:30 train Saturday morning, the 20th, and while there will be the guests of the local waterworks plant. Captain Smith Captain Storm will take about fifty officers and men.

Capital News reports that there is more interest shown in the militia this year than for years, as additional bonds for improving the municipal water and fire plants will be voted at the state. Inspection will be held early in March, and, as usual, Company H will make an excellent showing.

QUEER MANIFESTATION.

Fire of Peculiar Origin Down at Biloxi Yesterday Morning.

Biloxi, Miss., Feb. 12.—A fire of peculiar origin in the shed back the west of the lighthouse and which has been reported around town as a well known and well authenticated manifestation of the supernatural, occurred yesterday morning. There is a single board fence between the road and the water several feet deep and in two places small holes have been made in the board fence by some of the shells are hot to the touch and no damage done the board is found to be charred black and crumbling with heat. At first sight it looks as if it be a conflagration of a mysterious combustion. As a matter of fact there is a large layer of grass and trash underneath the shells, which extends for five to the grass along the edge of the bank, and on the night the fire crept underneath the trash and in consequence burned under the shells. Numerous persons have been down to the place to investigate. It is not believed that this has anything to do with Dr. Bloodworth's exorbitant

Advertisers would do well to remember that springtime is near and they will need to advertise with the Spalding. An advertisement in this paper will bring the desired results.

CHICAGO LETTER

Latest Notes of Happenings in and Around the Windy City Gathered Together and Sent Us by Our Special Correspondent.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—Yankee ingenuity that has value running into several hundred millions of dollars is involved in the minutes now before consideration with the endorsement of the American Bar Association and other bodies, for the creation of a court of patent appeals to expedite decisions in patent cases. The purpose is to have decisions by several years the ponderous judicial procedure in patent matters, as Cases will go on appeal from United States circuit courts direct to the new court, consisting of five members. Investigation of the merits of this measure has begun to fight some of during defects in the patent system of the United States as compared with the countries been noted for ingenuity but more careful in protecting its fruits. The main opposition to the bill by Chicago has been from imitations of the inventions which are so valuable that they cannot be discovered are practically fostered by present idea regarding patents, and the couple hundred of the discoveries is retarded by the competition of the imitations. Under the bill, which leads to distrust of the bona fide and the public has great millions of dollars for good bricks. The wildest imitations are petty and some $50,000,000 a year from the public but that sum is eclipsed by the higher sum which the Ameriboon people for the imitations of the counterfeit of the really great inventions, or for the counterfeits and patents that are begun," says one report on the subject. "One institution of Chicago alone, it is reported to keep solids or liquids at an unchanged temperature for many hours by means of a thermos bottle, invented in Germany and protected there by German patents. But imitations of the patent in most with impunity in the United States. Much of the companies whose business is based on patents are compelled to spend thousands of dollars monthly to defend their rights, because Uncle Sam permits without patents to prey on the public. Many European discoveries, those of the most importance, never are brought to the United States, because the patent laws are not adequately protective."

Inquiry here into grain grading and handling methods, as a result of European complaints, promises reformed disclosure facts of peculiar interest to the farmers and grain dealers of the country. For the first time in the pest of the old Illinois statute, which prohibited the mixing of grain by the mixers of siloflour frames proves to have resulted in a vast increase in the amount of grain which Chicago shaded water. Twenty years ago the process of selling grain by samples was made crude that several states, including Illinois, Minnesota and Nebraska, the law remained on the statute books for many years, although the second law of the grading commission of grain some means to save it was so great that the law was made to be observed at their plants what they called "moonbeam." which were in fact crude blending machines. The crude blending processes were discovered which enabled no injury to subject frames 75 percent of blending oats and barley has increased by leaps and bounds since the law was made to be observed for he this converts grain which seems almost worthless into a valuable commodity and poor grain to that worth several cents a bushel more than his raw material. Hundreds of dollars have than been saved and the farmers in the grading of grain the exporters are severely blamed for the inadequate and inspection provided in the McCumber bill, by which uniformity of grading satisfactory to foreign buyers can be secured.

Now that Iowans have hoisted the banner of the Hawkeye State swinging in Chicago, college of the Indiana society, the Kansas Society and Sons of Oldsby by force are expected to follow suit. For Iowans in this city, natives or former residents, number the population of all but one or two Iowa towns. One meets on Iowans so often that the advantage of organizing as the Kansas Society have become noted, and some of Wisconsin, Michigan, Missouri and states still more remote have a hand in all sorts of things in Chicago from electrocharmity to police court halling. But those in the city eligible to membership in the Hawkeye Fellowship number over 100,000. Governor W. L. Harding, who was educated at Iowa State College and Iowa's capital gave him his impulse that made his fortune, is probably. George M. Reynolds, president of the American Bankers Association, and the Continental Bank, is a native, born in Fairfield, Iowa, where he began to book. So, also is Geo. E. Roberts, president of the Commercial National Bank, and Frank O. Lowden, U. S. Minister and Secretary of the Treasury and now president of the Pullman Company, both those Iowa to be born in Iowa. Lowden is now nearly disposed of and the Pullman Company is controlled by New York and Chicago, recently his years in Iowa. Other Iowans are John R. Runnells, of the $100,000,000 Pullman Company, lived in Iowa, from which state Mr. Lowden was appointed counsel for the Pullman Company. H. E. Bartlett, who was graduated the Iowans for purposes of fellowship, gives the following among the number who are prominent: Lyman Gage, W. F. Kenyon, vice-president of the Illinois Central, Frank Wilson, H. I. Bush, attorney; Donald B. Carter, patent lawyer, Henry Myers, of the Illinois Central, Frank Lyman, W. S. Kenyon, counsel for Illinois Central, H. E. Bartlett, Dowling, the famous "Dowling of Tale," S. T. Mosseyer, president of the United States Express Company; R. G. Cooley, president of Chicago schools, and Dr. Frank O. Sadler. The new Hawkeye club will have headquarters in Chicago, will have monthly dinners and a publication of Iowa Hawkeyes and hopes to make the annual meeting equals of national note.

Hundreds of prospectors are hitting for the Cobalt district in northern Ontario, according to a Chicago mining engineers, who have just returned from the new camp of the new silver region, which was discovered last fall by a railway man northwest of Cobalt. The movement of mining material and prospectors during the winter into the country and the certainty of a great rush in the spring has already led to the opening of two unique sleigh roads through the forest, one from the east, where the Ontario government railway runs through Cobalt, to the new Transcontinental railway, two hundred miles farther north, and another which is just ready for opening, from the present terminus of the Canadian Northern railway at Sellwood, where are the great Moose mountain iron mines, controlled by the company of which John W. Gates, of New York, is president. The new camp is called Gowganda. The first find of silver was made, it seems, by a prospector named McCrimmon, who recently picked some rocks from the roof of a tree, and upon assaying the specimens found yielding about $20,000 a ton. Many of the rich veins have since been uncovered, one of them for 1,200 feet. They are very similar to those which produced the great wealth of Cobalt. Gowganda was seventy miles from the nearest railroad, it was impossible to get in with anything but bestial or mechanical in before winter, and the parties who were now here cut, have only just rendered it possible the development work to be begun. Gowganda is about twenty miles from Sellwood, and the distance of 300 miles from Sellwood to Cobalt. The twenty miles nearer than by the road which has been built from Cobalt. The Canadian Northern is to be extended from Sellwood next summer, so as to connect with the new camp, and Port Arthur, and it is expected that a railway will be run next summer from a point about forty miles beyond Sellwood. While it has been proposed to build the Sellwood branch, which has been found at Gowganda, the Canadian Northern is not sure that the face is almost exactly similar to the composition of those which, at Cobalt, have been found to yield a depth of 200 feet.

Plans for an enormous harbor, rival ing in efficiency those of Liverpool, Hamburg and Antwerp, have been for consideration by the city of Chicago. The harbor is intended to make the new deep waterway to the Mississippi an which the state of Illinois is building, and which is to connect the harbor is proposed to be in Lake Calumet, which is nearer the business district than the business district of the city than the harbor of Lake Michigan by the Calumet River. The plans under consideration provide for a deep harbor in Lake Calumet, twenty five feet deep, and the construction of docks and wharves on made land along either shore. From the north end of the lake a deep channel will be dug to Lake Michigan. Lake Calumet is the terminus of the new waterway, the Illinois and Mississippi, which the Sanitary District is about to build from Big Illinois. The harbor will be the most important improvement in connection with the deep waterway has been the subject of a number of sessions on Lake Michigan, Harbor Commissioner W. Boyd Cunningham, has been declared by government engineers to be out of the question, because it would have and crooked to take care of the large shipping which will be required for the new north and south route. Colonel L. Marshall, Chief of the Corps of Engineers, in a letter to Congressman first pointed out in his report of the Chicago River and Harbor Commission was the natural terminus of the waterway. Notwithstanding the governmental raised objection, the Chicago Commission now has a bill which would be withdrawn and the harbor at the lake shore location is now nearly disposed of and the Illinois Legislature will pass the current decision enabling them to construct a natural dock on the Sag channel.

Women's suffrage to exterminate the white slave traffic more speedily than men will do it is a proposal made by the Illinois Women's Suffrage Association by the hand of its chairman, Mrs. Ida Husted Harper, and Mrs. Mary E. Creighs, whose argument for woman's suffrage in this state appeared in the Tribune. Women at least This latter will be turned over with excess of others by the Women's World, which has now tak on up the "white-slave-to-shoot-it" phase of the suffrage cause. Men in girls which it proves in its web of traffic in girls and boys. Mrs. Creighs's letter was as follows: "Mr. Slaughter's Illinois Suffrage says there is a federal law passed in February, 1907, which makes it unlawful to import women into other countries. There being no authority under the federal government to enforce the law, I am concerned in securing white slaves from Illinois and Illinois women. Shall I be just the most of the white female. Women as a disfranchised class are deprived in this country of all power to change conditions. They are in a home all alone, in that they are utterly powerless to use governmental means to wipe out some of the places that are a menace to morality and to our civilization. It is exasperating to read such articles as those of Mr. Sims, practically admitting that the only way is to keep them away from our cities. If that is so, we have in it the strongest argument for the prohibition of women in government that can either may be made decisive and under. Our District Attorney and our Mayor in New York City (the latter) refused our women's clubs three years ago to take up this question in New York, because it was just before election and they would antagonize votes by so doing. If they could have been supported by the votes of the women, they would not have been so afraid to antagonize the saloon element and the police, for let me say right here that women suffrage is a tax on women, as well as men, protect the men in infamy every time, against the women, their victim."

THE CASE OF THE CHILD.

The idea advanced in Louisiana that tuberculosis children should be excluded from the public schools is worth up an important question.

No one will deny that the safety of healthy children is endangered by exposure to the disease through the close daily contact with infected children in the schools. Those whose bodies are afraid should be protected and one of the most effective means of stamping out the disease is to prevent the infection of healthy children. Undoubtedly, those who are a menace to the public health should be removed from close contact with the healthy.

On the other hand, the diseased child is entitled to the fullest protection from his fellows because of any physical disability. Nature is liberal of his own, which, in justice to him and to the community, must not be disregarded. Nowadays, science has shown us that tuberculosis is by no means hereditary but is acquired, so that a child who is a danger to others may have a child is expected to have inherited nothing for its own good or health, there should be schools and special classes in every. Local terrain ate child a chance for development as nearly normal as the conditions of the case permit.

We are beginning to realize at last the enormous waste of the ages and thinking of saving that waste. One of the biggest items of which human beings since has been spilling has been the waste of human material because it has been thought useless. The best thought of the science of today is heat upon the problem of caring this waste, and the most successful practical results have been obtained from the care and study that have been given to the child.

Those who are most familiar with the needs of one own public school system have felt that the time that some provision should be made here for separate schools or classes in which children who are not able either or through defective hearing or sight, or otherwise, to keep pace with their fellows may receive the special care they require. The expense of making such provision would be more offset by the community many times by the saving in money that would be human material which we now allow to go to waste and which we actually carry later as a burden upon charity

The present demand for the separate education of tuberculous children is best brings up a different phase of the same problem. Tuberculosis is not necessarily incapable of development into efficient members of the community. If we focus our attention on the fact that free human compatibility with other children is necessary to health, we should provide the best substitute in our power. It is a good thing for the sick and feeble to take up this question seriously. The most pressing needs for change in conditions have been provided for, and part of the funds of the Board might well be devoted to making a start at least in the establishment of separate classes for these children. Of course, there should not be kept in the same classes with the normal and the healthy.—N. O. Item.

BUSY DAY FOR PRESIDENT-ELECT

New Orleans, Feb. 12.—An automobile tour along the river parishes from Its to Tulane University and other places of interest, kept President-elect Taft busy during the greater part of today. The entertainment programme will reach a climax tonight with a banquet that promises to eclipse anything of the kind ever given in New Orleans. Two thousand invitations have been issued for the function. The room will contain Judge Wm. Pinkney Lane and Major Behman of New Orleans.

HIT DUSKY BRIDE AND IS FINED $25

When Fred Brown, a well known negro, went to his home last night and ascertained that his dusky bride of five months had not prepared his supper, he became involved in an argument with her which finally culminated in his "only" slapping her.

"You was starting out pretty early in that kind of business," said Judge Wharton, "and I might as well put a stop to it right here. You are fined $25."

A white stranger named Simpson was fined $3 for striking a negro boy known as "Sheriff" at the Wychcliffe Exchange last night. Another white man was fined $5 for a little May, a negress charged with vagrancy, proved to the satisfaction of the court she was working and was discharged. Carrie Johnson, ida Bettour, Bessie Mossley and Florence King, negresses, charged with vagrancy, did not put in an appearance. They were fined $10 each, with the exception of Carrie Johnson, who sent word that she was ill and was fined $5.

COTTON STATES LEAGUE DIRECTORS MEET TODAY

Mr. Pitt S. Merrill president of the Cotton States League, has called a meeting of the directors to be held in Jackson this afternoon at 4 o'clock. The object being to fill the vacancy in the circuit caused by the withdrawal of the Columbus team. It has been rumored for several days that Meridian was going to pull out, also, but assurances have been received from that city that she would be in the game again, and there has been very general rejoicing on the part of the fans around the circuit.

Just where the Columbus franchise will go is not known, but the opinion is that Selma, Ala., will get it. In the event that Selma does not come into the Cotton States League, there are other towns that are reported to move that, willing, and it need not be feared that the full quota of teams will be on the circuit this summer. Shortly before midnight President Merrill received a telegram message from Meridian stating that a largely attended mass meeting had been held there and that there need be no fears about that town being in the league another season. Great enthusiasm was manifested at the meeting and arrangements were made to finance the club, it is up the grounds and play ball as never before.

past two or three months, ranging down blind tigers, gambles, etc. The affidavit was returnable to Justice of the Peace Cade's court, instead of to the city court where all the blind tiger cases have been tried. Mr. Evans is charged with selling "booze" on his own account. There is no doubt that Mr. Evans purchased a cask of whiskey in plain, from a Louisville house. That fact was brought out on mother trial here a day or two since. In fact Mr. Evans has never denied that he purchased the goods, but stated he did so in order to trap another party. During the afternoon Mr. S. J. Taylor, learning that the affidavit had been made against Mr. Evans in Justice Cade's court, went to the office of the justice for the purpose of making the necessary bond the, would be required of Mr. Evans, and was told that the affidavit had been withdrawn.

Too Much Praise for Trustees.

Col. W. A. Montgomery, member of the board of trustees of the peabody library, thinks that Messrs. Collins and Avent, the signatures, are the trustees entirely too much praise for the success of the peabodyiany management, and requests that it be transferred to Captain Neyland, the superintendent of that department of the state government. The truth of the matter is that the signatures should be transferred to Mr. Neyland. The superintendent is admittedly one of the best farmers the state has ever had. He has surrounded himself with a corps of sergeants all of whom are good farmers, and good crops and good management result. The trustees have little to do with the farm work, but they exercise general supervision over the whole, and the fact that the farms are making good money for the state is evidence that all hands are doing their duty.
